WYOMING UNION

Foreword

In presenting the 1941 Wyo we have tried to catch the spirit of Wyoming U. Packed between these covers are the pictures of your friends - - - - pictures of the fun you had and where you had it - - your picture - - your triumphs and failures. Here it is, the 1941 Wyo. It is yours. Treasure it for what it holds permanent.

Contents

BOOK ONE - ADMINISTRATION

BOOK TWO - - - - CLASSES

BOOK THREE - COLLEGE ACTIVITIES

BOOK FOUR - GREEKS and CLUBS

BOOK FIVE - - - ATHLETICS

BOOK SIX - - CAMPUS LIFE

Although national and international problems have penetrated the collegiate cloister of juke boxes and knee-length hose, of dates and cramming, and of beer busts and classes, we have managed to learn a little and have a good time.

May these pages be reminiscent of this good time at the turn of the decade, in a score of years, forever.

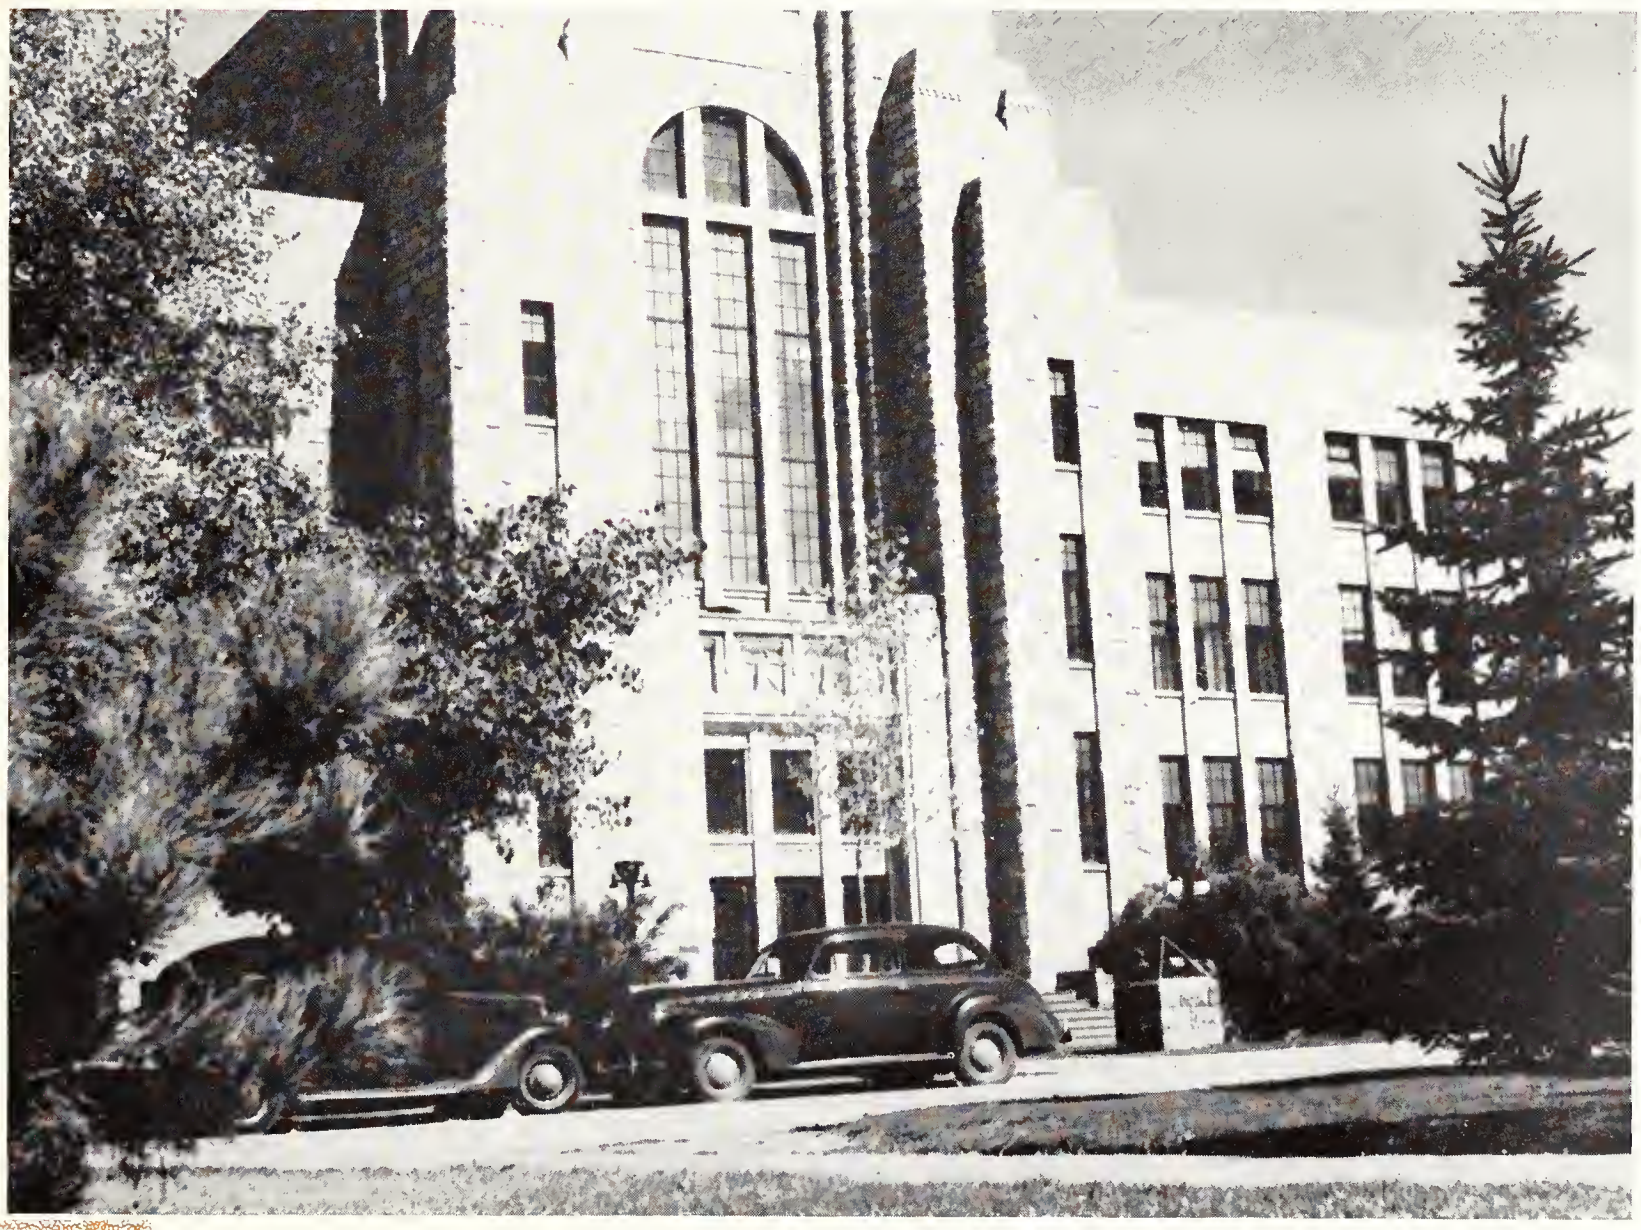
TO THE STUDENT LIFE OF NINETEEN-FORTY AND FORTY-ONE

To the youth of America, to the average boy and girl of today so splendidly typified by the students of Wyoming University we dedicate this, the 1941 "Wyo" yearbook. This average American boy and girl are facing critical times, their plans for the future are uncertain, and even the present in which they live is confusing and tumultous. Yet the young "America" of today have everything to live for in this the finest land on earth. And so this book, in which we have attempted to set before you, life at Wyoming University for the year 1940-41, we dedicate to you with the hope that at some future date, when it is brought forth from the files, it will help recall many happy hours spent at this University.

THE WYOMING Campus

We'll give the student body three guesses as to where on the campus this stained glass window can be found. But to save them any embarrassment let them take a look out the south-west door of "Old Main". Yes sir, there it is.

University Hall better known as "Old Main" is the oldest building on the Wyoming campus and dates back to the year 1886 when the cornerstone of this traditional building was laid.



Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical engineers of the campus find this building valuable for class and shop work at the University of Wyoming. Civil Aeronautic pilots also get their ground-school work here.

SCENES

Another view of "Old Main", one of the most picturesque buildings on the campus. It houses the President's suite and most of the administrative units of the University, including the office of the Dean of Men and Women. Entirely renovated in the past year it has taken on new, clean look from inside to out.

The University library one of the busiest of all campus buildings is also the home of the University Law school. It is here students go for valuable class reference and also to pick up their dates for their evening 9 o'clock "coke". The "lib" as it is popularly called operates at capacity whenever "final examination" time rolls around.

ON WYOMING CAMPUS

A rear view of the University green-house and Science hall. Here the botanists and geologists complete their college work. The Science hall also houses the University Museum. Not entirely unlike "Old Main" this building is one of the earliest in the history of the campus.

SCENES

Behind the sharp outlines of this modern building the Liberal Arts students of the University attend classes. One of the newest additions to the campus it is also the home of the University Auditorium. It is here the University plays host to eminent speakers and personalities of the nation. The "LA" building was constructed with native sandstone in an architectural style reminiscent of earlier and more romantic days.

Wyoming's gymnasium, more familiarly known as "Hell's Half Acre," has perhaps the largest basketball floor of any such building in the Big Seven Conference. Besides containing small gyms, and swimming pool for indoor athletics, the building provides for administrative and drill facilities of the ROTC infantry unit.

AROUND THE CAMPUS

Like some castle of old, the Men's Hall stands majestically protecting the northeastern approach to the campus although there be nothing but tumbleweed beyond. Up to date in every respect, the dormitory is one of the latest additions to the campus.

SCENES

This is the entrance to another of the campus's oldest buildings, the Education building. Here Wyoming's potential teachers receive their training in the University elementary and secondary training schools.

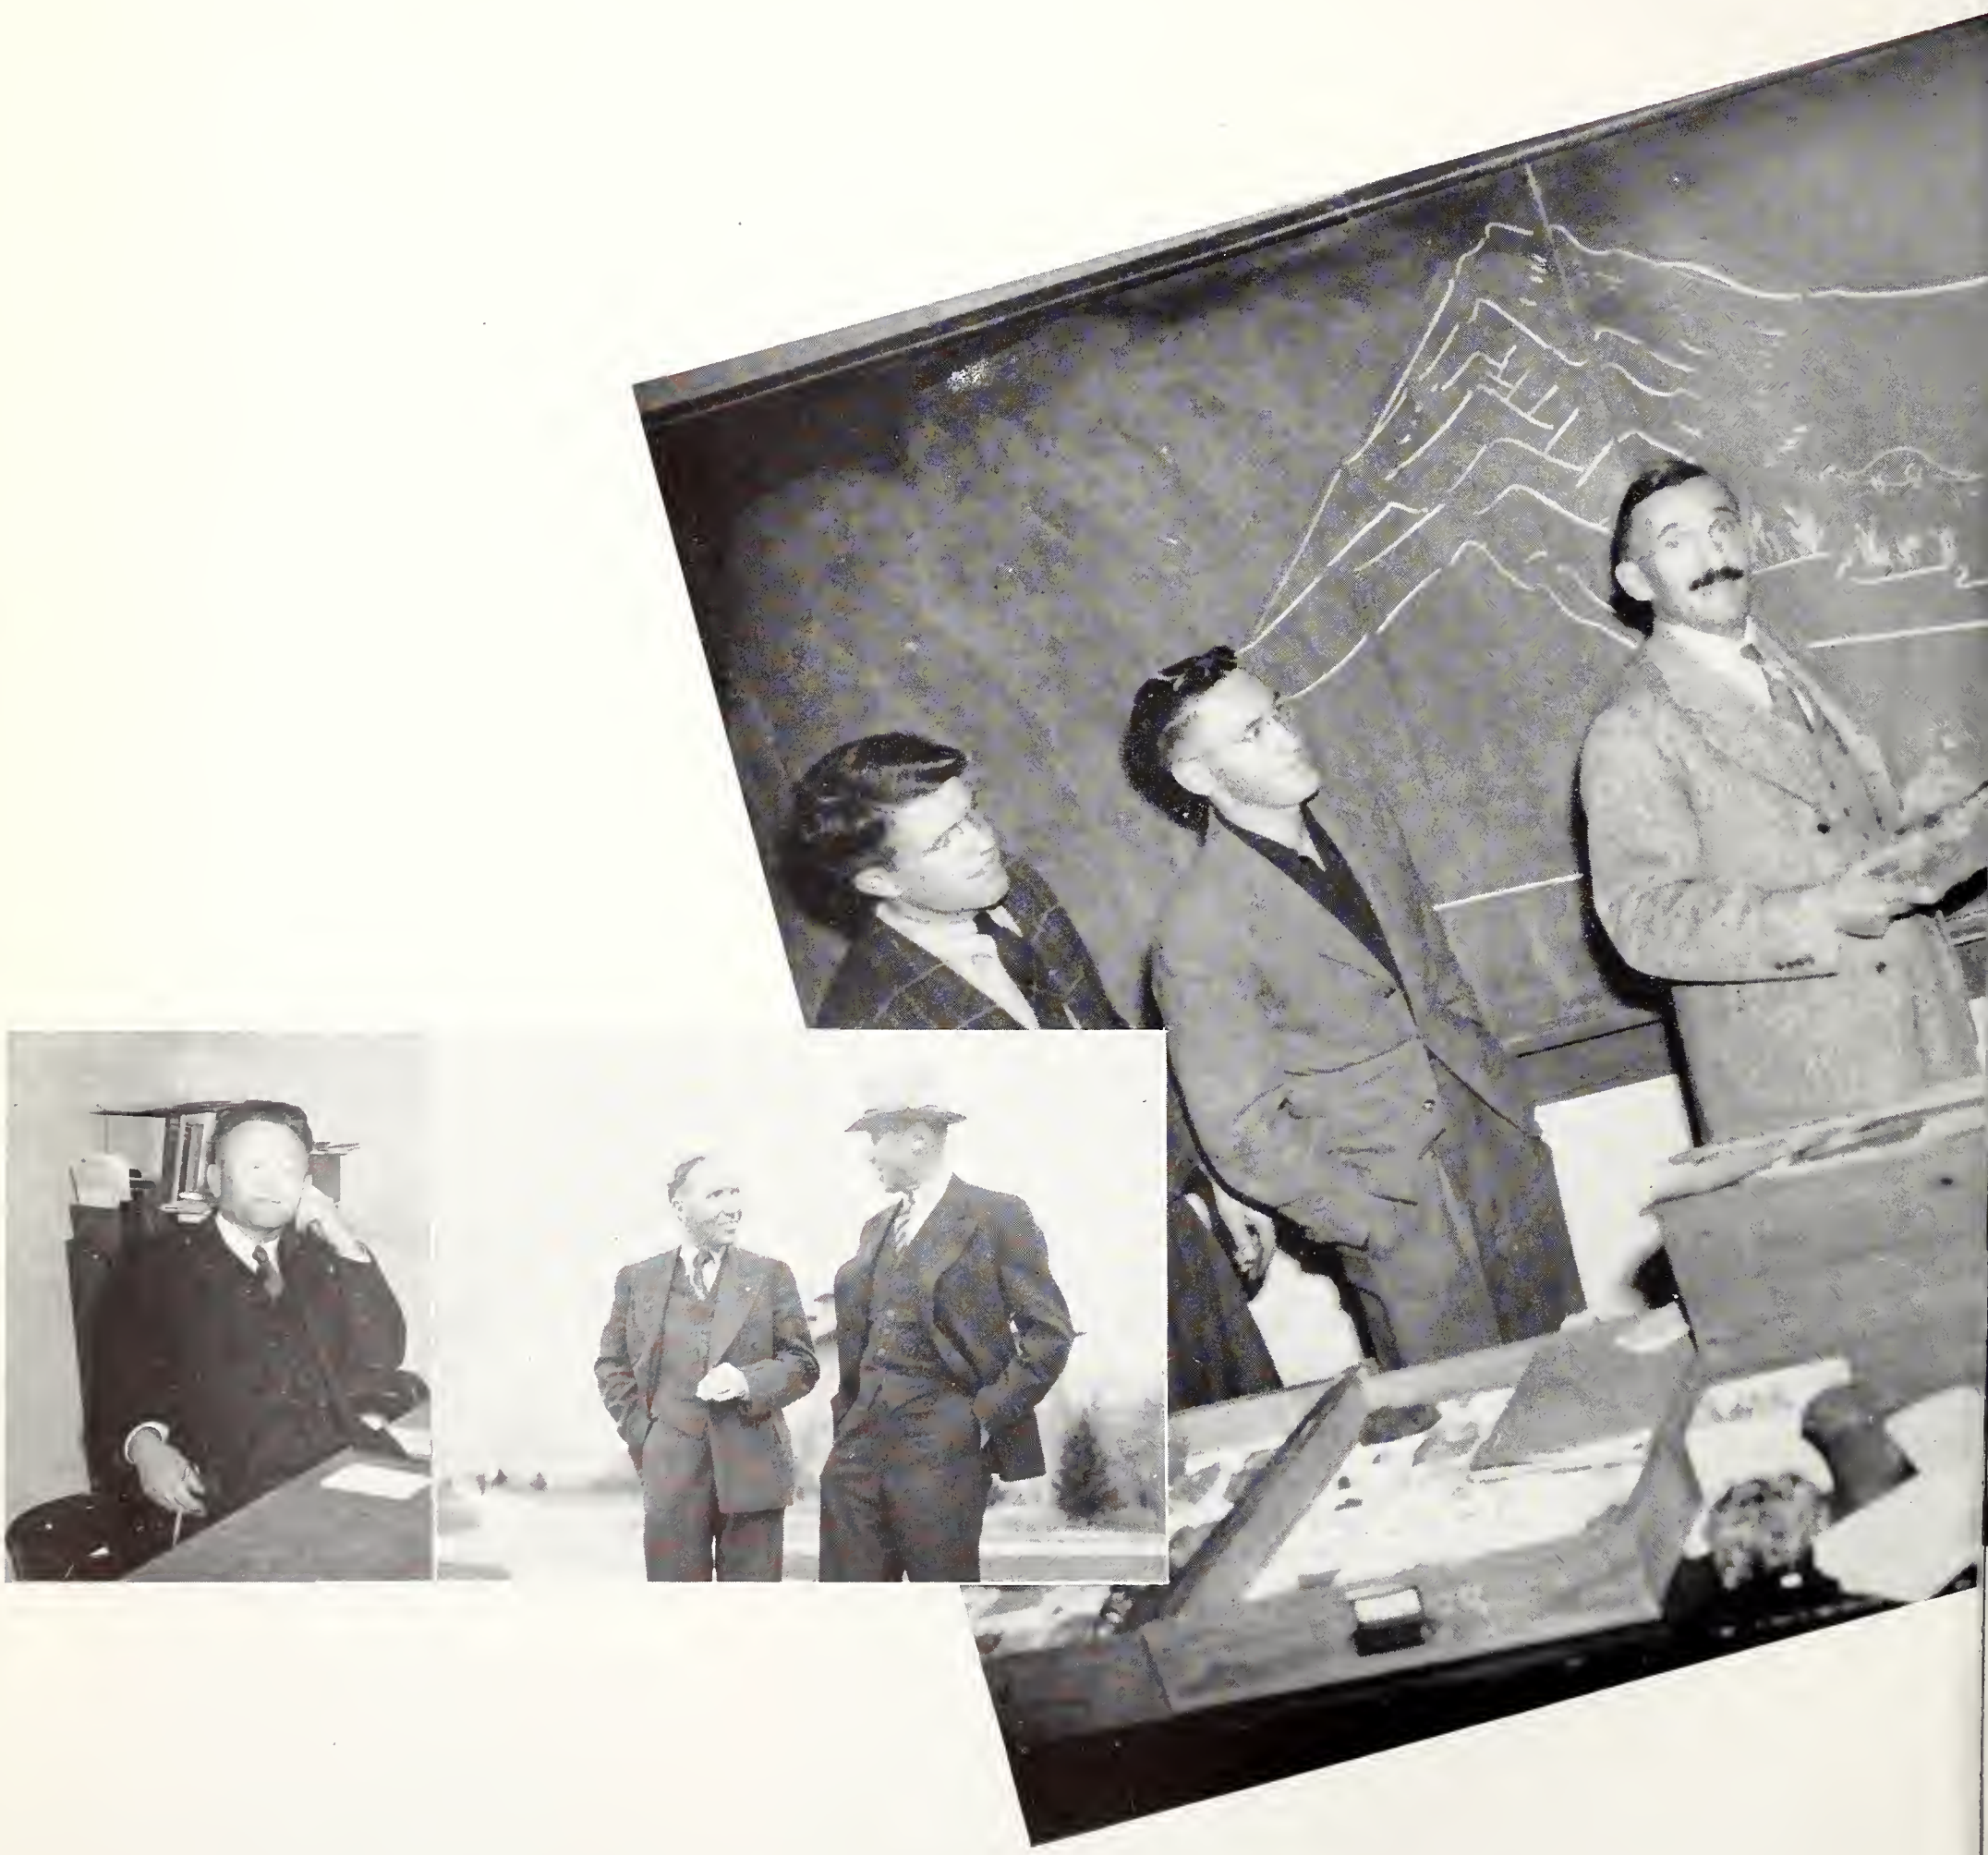
Fleecy clouds as pictured above spell wind for the students of Wyoming university, and then is when they duck their heads and bend forward to navigate across the campus.

AROUND THE CAMPUS

This building is the home of the department of Agriculture, one of the most important departments of the University, containing the colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics. Here too the official weatherman operates and makes his predictions. Badly overcrowded, the department of Agriculture is in dire need of more room for equipment and to facilitate the work of the students.

Two beautiful coeds, Helen Inkster, and Ramona Miner, relax for a moment on the old stone bench 'neath the pine trees, just south of the University library.

BOOK ONE



Administration

President • Deans • Faculty • Clerks • Etc.

Here we see President Crane in a very familiar pose as he labors over the affairs and problems of Wyoming University. Below we see his able secretary Miss Ida J. Moen, who has proved a valuable aid to the president in his 19 years of service to the college.

PRESIDENT Crane

ARTHUR GRISWOLD CRANE

It may seem odd that the 1941 WYO is not dedicated to Dr. Crane in consideration of his 19 years of loyal and diligent service as president of this University. However, at Dr. Crane's own suggestion we have dedicated this book to the student body—his first interest.

Throughout his career as "Prexy", Dr. Crane expressed his devotion to the student body in many ways. His last statement to the students before he left the University was a recapitulation of this devotion.

Aside from his academic interests, Dr. Crane realized the necessity of enlarging the physical plant of the University so that it might remain on par with the ever increasing enrollment. The many buildings that were erected during his administration will remain a lasting tribute to the service and comradeship he has shown us.

For continual conscientious administration Dr. Crane deserves our best wishes in whatever venture he turns toward.

Here again we see Dr. Crane and Miss Moen seated at their desks in the office of "Old Man". At these desks they have seen Wyoming University grow and prosper to an enrollment of over 2000.

Deans

DEAN GOODRICH—Engineering

Since 1928 Dean Ralph D. Goodrich has been head of the Engineering College at the University of Wyoming. The function of Dean Goodrich and his staff is to train future leaders in industrial development. To accomplish this purpose they offer a four-year curricula in the department leading to a B. S. degree in either Civil, Electrical, Mechanical or General Engineering. As a branch of the Engineering college the Civil Aeronautics Flying course is also under the jurisdiction of Dean Goodrich.

DEAN SCHWIERING—Education

As head of the College of Education, Dean Oscar C. Schwiering, Ph.D., has under his direction both the primary and secondary teachers courses and is also in charge of the summer school curricula. Much credit is due Dean Schwiering for his work in the summer school. In the short time he has been at the head of the Education college he has developed and enlarged the summer school curicula until it is fast becoming one of the most popular in the west.

DEAN MILLER—Liberal Arts

The three divisions of the College of Liberal Arts make it, perhaps, one of the most varied of any of the colleges. At its head since 1918 has been Dean Pleasant T. Miller, M. A., who has worked diligently to maintain high standards in the divisions of Letters and Sciences, Commerce, and Music. Probably the most popular college at the University, Liberal Arts graduates more students each spring than any other.

DEAN HILL—Agriculture

Internationally known sheep and wool expert, Dean John A. Hill, B. S., since 1913 has been head of the College of Agriculture at Wyoming. This college is fast building up its alumni, as graduates take an active part in agriculture and homemaking throughout the state. University of Wyoming exhibits have won high honors at various livestock expositions over the country. The livestock judging teams, too, are a credit to the University and the College of Agriculture as they continually bring home only the top awards.

DEAN ARNOLD—Law

In its twenty years of existence on the campus, Wyoming's Law College has made gratifying progress. At its head since 1933 has been Dean Carl F. Arnold, L. B., J. S. D. Next year, however, Dean Arnold has accepted a position in Washington and will not be back. The law college and the University as a whole will miss his fine work, for under his leadership the college has received a class "A" rating from the American Bar Association, the highest classification given. The University of Wyoming wishes Dean Arnold all the success in the world.

Deans

MAJOR DALY—Dean of Men

The particular interest of Major Beverly C. Daly, U. S. A., retired, is the welfare of every male student on the University of Wyoming campus. His job, you can guess, is Dean of Men. Despite the fact that the "Major" picked the wrong baseball team to win the National League pennant he is admired and respected by every fellow at the University. Mention his name in a bull-session and here is the comment, "He is a swell guy and a good egg." Visits to the office of Dean of Men are very frequent but they are not always to see Major Daly. Look at the lovely secretary he has working for him.

MISS GALLIVER—Dean of Women

Miss E. Luella Galliver, M. A., directs the interests of the women students at Wyoming university in her capacity as Dean of Women. It can be easily said that Miss Galliver is as well liked by the coeds as Major Daly is by the men. Naturally the fellows can find fault with Miss Galliver on the 12 o'clock night when the girls must all be in, but this is part of the job of the Dean of Women, and congenial Miss Galliver doesn't mind the complaints just as long as the girls get in. Miss Galiver is also on the faculty committees for student credit, student employment and student social life.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The University of Wyoming is a state institution by a provision of the Constitution of Wyoming. It is supported by the State of Wyoming and by the United States, and is undenominational and nonpartisan. Its government is vested in a Board of Trustees, appointed by the Governor of Wyoming, with the consent of the State Senate.

SENIOR ACTIVITIES

Among other senior activities is the "junior senior prom" where seniors are honored by the junior class. Seniors also participate in the spring "bridle and spur" ceremony, the traditional presentation of the bridle and spur, signifying leadership and example, to the junior class.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

The senior class was led this year by four competent officers. Serving as president was Curtis Rochelle; vice-president, Eugene Greenley; secretary, Dorothy Costin; treasurer, Dorothy Geisler. Since this class first came to the campus in 1937 they have witnessed nothing but improvement, and progress. They have seen two new buildings added; the Student Union, and Knight hall. They have seen four consecutive increases in enrollment. They have noted the revival of baseball as a conference sport, the revival of this book, the Wyo, as a record of student activities, and the inauguration of our "Varsity show" student dramatic production. These seniors have done much to increase the rapid progress seen by the University. It is with regret that we see you go, seniors of 1941, and we wish you all the success in the world.

SENIORS WE ALL KNOW

Farmer Joe Black has been exceedingly active in the college of agriculture and among college politics during his four years of college. He is a member of Iron Skull, Alpha Zeta, Scabbard and Blade, and served as vice-president of the student senate in his junior year. Joe recently passed his examination for the United States Air Corps and will graduate as a 2nd lieutenant, infantry reserve officer. It looks like the army for Joe so we salute him and wish him well. He claims Sheridan as his home town and is a member of Phi Delta Theta.

Dependable Karl Kerbach claims Rock Springs as his home town. "Bud" is a member of Iron Skull, and Scabbard and Blade, and played varsity basketball for three years. He has always done Esquire credit and could easily be called "best dressed man on the campus." Bud also graduates as a 2nd lieutenant, infantry reserve officer so it looks like the army. Everyone will miss him and particularly a certain Pi Phi freshman. He is a member of Sigma Nu. Good luck Bud!

Happy-go-lucky Dorothy Costin will graduate this spring with honors. She is past member of Spurs and still National Editor of Spur magazine. "Dot" is a member of Pan-Hellenic council, Mortar Board, Blue Pencil and past member of AWS board. She also served as a member of the student senate. How Dorothy has managed to do all these things and still drag down the best of grades will always remain a mystery to the most of us. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi, and hails from Laramie. It looks like wedding bells for "Dot" when she graduates so just in case we miss the wedding here's offering our congratulations for all the happiness in the world.

SENIORS WE ALL KNOW

Seth Banks hit Wyoming University two years ago hailing from Mississippi, way down in the deep south. Since then he has won himself a host of friends and admirers with his easy going manner and quick smile. Of course he was handicapped by not being able to speak English when first coming to school (you know how those southerners talk), but he quickly overcame this and now you can almost understand him when he speaks. He served this year on the student senate and last year was a member of the varsity football squad. You can always find him in the Wyoming Union fountain putting out "cokes" a hundred a minute. Seth is scheduled to be a school teacher but there is a possibility Uncle Sam may catch him in the draft. Whether with gun or ruler he has our best wishes. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

From Laramie comes bright and smiling Dorothy Geisler. During her four years of college she has been a member of Pan-Hellenic council, Iron Skull, and Spurs. "Geke" always has a good word for everyone even though her heart interests have been divided between the Phi Delts and Sigma Nus. We don't know what her plans for the future may be but rest assured she will make a success of most anything she attempts. Dorothy is a member of Delta Delta Delta. Best of luck, "Geke".

Ernest Wilkerson, pre-law student from Casper has during his college career displayed a keen ability as a leader. He is admired by everyone for his accurate far-sightedness and super-h u m a n qualities as an orator. "Ernie" served the students as president of their student senate last year and while in office performed his duties as has no other president. Inauguration of our "Varsity Show" and the re-birth of this yearbook as an annual publication is due largely to the efforts of "Marse" Wilkerson. He is off to the east next year for his law school training and one of these days we will all be able to say "We knew him when . . . " Ernie is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Jimmy Clare served as this year's junior class president, ably assisted by Peggy Tobin, vice-president and Donna Jean Foote as secretary and treasurer. Despite the fact that the class lost money on its "Junior Prom" much can be said for the way in which it handled its other activities. In taking over the "bridle and spur" from the outgoing seniors this class has a splendid record to live up to, but we expect the best and know they won't let us down.

THE CLASS OF 1942

At work in the drafting room are the Engineers. The four-year curricula offered at Wyoming University gives students training in all branches of engineering work.

ACTIVITIES

No, life at the University of Wyoming isn't all dances, picnics, week-ends, and celebrations. There are five days out of every seven when the student attends classes, puts in many hard hours of study and attempts to absorb at least a portion of the vast amount of knowledge put before him in lectures and books. For after all it is the purpose of every student in spending four years at such an institution to better fit himself for employment in later life. In these two pages we give you just a brief look at Wyoming students at work.

Zoologists at top are busy carving up the various animals in their study of anatomy, etc. In the journalism laboratory sophomore journalists get experience in news-writing. The picture of the machine gives the next one away. In the engineering shops Wyoming's potential industrialists are put to work learning the fundamentals of the various mechanical devices.

This isn't a final exam and the two students aren't cribbing. More than likely they are preparing their registration blanks and filling out their booklets in preparation for a quarter's work.

Sophomores

The big sophomore responsibility is the sponsoring of the "Powder-River ball." The motif for the affair was the old-time dance palace and as you can see the gambling fever was at a pitch. The western spirit runs high, and it was the time for fun and relaxation. Sophomores you did a good job on this dance.

Back for their second year of college life the sophomores performed their traditional duties of orientating the freshmen in fine style. Jimmy Speas coordinated all sophomore activities as president of the class. Jack Rhodes served as vice-president and Janet Trowe as secretary. From the first of the year this class let it be known that they were out to be the best to graduate from Wyoming University. Go to it gang!!

FRESHMEN CLASS ACTIVITIES

The freshmen, confused by the innumerable activities of college life, were consistently heckled by the sophomores in their attempts to "white-wash the W", a traditional job of all first-year classes. Despite this, however, the freshmen did the job and did it well. The dance, as you can well imagine, is a school mixer, always well patronized by the freshmen.

FRESHMEN CLASS OFFICERS

The freshmen met, early in the fall, and elected the following to head the class for the year: president, Chauncey McDermott; vice-president, Earl Ray; secretary, Ann Sedar; treasurer, Shirley Blackwood. Under the guidance of these officers the class quickly adopted themselves to college, forgot about high-school and soon became known as the most promising freshman class in years.

Under the leadership of Teno Roncalio the student senate began its third year of existence under the revised constitution of ASUW. Then when Teno was called to Washington Glenn Mullins stepped in to fill his shoes. Operating on a budget of a little less than $10,000 the student senate this year did an admirable job in conducting the affairs of the student body. Work in such an organiaztion requires much time and effort by the student members and they deserve credit and praise for their accomplishments.

SENATE

Senators Betty Caldwell, Priscilla Ann McKinney, Ruth Eaton, and Mary Gill watch with interest as Arthur Edwards works out the proposed expenditures for the student health service.

Excursion - - - Victor Wolfson

The University Players under the direction of Mr. Dean G. Nichols opened the Fall season with the presentation of Broadway success Excursion. Using sets designed for lightning changes, the action progressed swiftly through the three acts revealing the search for happiness of the passengers and crew—their attempt to run away from the dull routine of their lives back on the mainland, and the final return home with a new and hopeful outlook for the future. The play was well chosen to begin the theatrical year, as it provided opportunity for appearance to a large group of theatrical enthusiasts, and at the same time proved highly entertaining to an appreciative audience.

The passengers and crew gather in the Captain's cabin to hear the radio reports of their run-away trip down the Jersey coast.

Twelfth Night or What You Will

by William Shakespeare

A beautifully set production of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night was presented by the class in play production under the direction of Lawrence Voss. This was perhaps the artistic achievement of the year, and was costumed and set entirely by students. The lusty flavor of the play was expertly handled, bringing to the audience an accurate and understanding presentation of Shakespearean drama.

The countess Olivia played by Caroline Pritchard.

The clown Feste played by Winford Hungate.

Fabian, played by Charles Rushia.

DRAMATICS

Voorhies (Gorgeous Weinbarg) is admonished to hold to the straight and narrow by Edgar G. Hoover (Gil Frazer) and Chairman Dies of committee fame (Tom Procter .

Homer: Smell that air.
Mayme: That air what?

Homer Pigeon (George Johnston) and Mayme Doolittle (Joan Engle) pause to enjoy the scenery while searching for a ranch inherited by Sally Doolittle (Norma Call).

Here We Go Again

Wyoming presents the Varsity Show of 1940 inaugurating a new form of entertainment on this campus! This show supplanted the time worn Stunt Night, and was written, directed, acted and produced entirely by students. A courageous band of pioneers fought for the idea that progress was needed in the entertainment world in Wyoming, resulting in the production of the first Varsity Show "Here We Go Again". The story had a local setting, and was mainly concerned with the search for a lost ranch reported to be somewhere in old Wyoming. With a musical score containing many hit tunes, beautiful chorus girls, settings by Vina Cames, Wyoming's outstanding artist, and a script of sparkling dialogue, the show won the acclaim of both Laramie and Cheyenne audiences. Added honors were given the show when it was chosen as one of the seven best college shows of the nation for 1940, by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. This year's Wyo is setting a precedent which it hopes other year books in the future will follow, by running pictures and the account of the previous year's Varsity Show.

The outstanding number of the show was the boogie-woogie scene in which Gladys DeBerry appeared as the dancer, embodying the spirit of jungle rhythm pulsating through the negro boogie-woogie.

The cowgirl chorus at right is composed of Alice Jackson, Abby Peterson, Maxine Roukema, Betty Kirkpatrick, and Bunny Wright.

Director Bob Mitchell checks the cast as they board the train at Laramie to take the show to Cheyenne. A special show train was chartered to make the trip.

THE 1941 "WYO"

Editor Bill Shutts

Today the fun and study of the 1940-41 school year is a vivid realization. But as the years roll away few of us will recall homecoming or the grade we made or failed to make in that oo class.

Still it is not the purpose of this book to present an exacting chronicle of events. That is a job for a patient historian. Our job is to hold the mirror up to the passing parade that has been this school year and to set the occasional reflections into engravings and type. This we hope we have succeeded in doing.

STAFF...

Business Manager Gene Levitt

It is obvious that the various editors and photographers alone cannot do all the work connected with putting out a quality yearbook. There must be a staff, a competent staff, insignificant in name but vital to the production of an annual. The editors appreciate the work done on the 1941 Wyo by the following staff members: Lenore Reichmuth, Anne Laughlin, Helen Inkster, Peggy Frazer, Shirley England, Louise Starr, Donna Jean Roush, Vivien Berkshire, Dorothy Costin, Mary Jane Grewelle, Georgina Haddentorst, Dorothy Jolley, Helen Johnston, Dick McAllister, Jane McMurray, Homer Grooman, Betty Nalls, Peggy Tobin, Mary Anne Wilcox and Ruth Warden.

Shutts does a bit of layout describing . . . or is it that?—Anyway everyone seems quite happy.

Manager Editor Gene Levitt

Business Manager Evelyn Edwards

THE BRAND

Succeeding George Johnston as managing editor, Gene Levitt further streamlined the Branding Iron and introduced an increased use of illustrations, a belligerent editorial policy, and a greater campus news coverage.

The staff covered all campus news, wrote features and personal columns, sold advertising, produced editorials that the Association Collegiate Press described as "insurgent," and managed to stay on the financially healthy side of the ledger.

Neither a successful business manager nor an ambitious managing editor can make a newspaper without an able news staff Thoroughly realizing this the 1941 Branding Iron editorial board wishes to express thanks to the following reporters—they have covered the news:

MILI

Wyoming University is doing its part for national defense under its federal grant of a Reserve Officers Training unit. The infantry regiment under the command of Lt. Colonel Malcolm E. Craig, Professor of Military Science and Tactics has attained honor rating for many years and at the annual summer camp for advanced corps students, Wyoming's future reserve officers have always maintained the highest of averages. The advanced corps, open to only a percentage of cadets with two years basic credit, has more than 100 students in its class. The entire regiment, recently transferred to the ninth corps area, consists of approximately 800 cadets. Assisting Colonel Craig with drill and class work are Lts. Stanley T. Winter, Harold E. Gould, Michael Sedar; Sgts. Ralph W. Jones, Perry A. Raines, and Victor L. Clark. In the clerical office are Captain Mitchell Hilt, and Sgt. William H. Smith. Major Louis Knicker and Sgt. Emil Stanley are in charge of the supply office and Mr. H. W. Thompson instructs the ROTC band.

Lt. Winter, left, and Lt. Gould, right discuss the problems of the cadet's drill.

RADIO

The University Radio studio, directed by Bob Mitche 11, producers three shows weekly (very weakly) which are distributed by transcription through the Rocky Mountain Radio Council. The subjects are educational, and musical, and are written by faculty members, acted and produced by student members of the University radio guild.

STOCK JUDGING TEAMS

Senior Team

The stock judging teams coached by Professor S. S. Wheeler of the Animal Production department have always made fine records for themselves and the University. This year's teams are no exception. The senior team competed in five inter-collegiate meets at Denver, Portland, Chicago and twice at Ogden. They captured second place honors at Denver and Ogden, third at Portland and were ranked 25 out of 31 teams competition in Chicago. The Junior team has competed twice, at Denver and Fort Worth, winning sixth place at both meets. These boys deserve much credit for their unheralded efforts and hard work.

At left the journalists get together for their afternoon coffee in the Union fountain. Fountain boys work hard during a rush hour after a basketball game. At right we see students as they pack the union lounge and even on the stairs during a broadcast of a cowboy basketball game being played away from home.

Wyoming's "home away from home" becomes a mad house as students swarm from the gymnasium after the final whistle of a basketball game. Arnie Sureson and Joe Harvey enjoy the company of Frances Barrows. No doubt the fellows bought the "coke."

GROUND SCHOOL

The University Ground School in both the primary and secondary group instructed some 60 students in the fundamentals of aircraft operation, meteorology, navigation and other essentials to flying this year.

Under the capable instruction of Tim Brady the ground school in connection with the Civil Aeronautics Administration of the United States government has worked out a curriculum that includes systems of piloting, the use of radio aides, practical work with navigation instruments, as well as a complete explanation of the civil air regulations with demonstrations in manuvering in private pilot aero-dynamics.

In hand with both the growing interest in aviation and the national defense program is the Civilian Pilot Training Program conducted at the University under the auspices of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Scores of men—and one woman—have taken advantage of the opportunity to learn to fly. The result: Wings Over the Campus.

A CAPPELLA CHOIR

Whether it be the Honors Assembly, a Gilbert and Sullivan production, a church service, the annual meeting of a local business group, or a regular assembly, if singing is needed the A cappella is there.

It was this University Choir that provided the nucleous for the successful operetta "Iolanthe" that was presented to a near-capacity crowd this year in the University auditorium.

"'Singing," according to Prof. Leon King who is the director of the group, "is our business. You supply the situation and we'll come prepared whether it be light operetta or solemn choir voices you want."

Football

From the realm of high school supremacy came C. H. Blanchard to try his hand at ramrodding Wyoming's Punchers into football winners. Serving as Athletic Director and head football coach "Okie" had a busy year. Okie knew that he was taking a hard job. He inherited a squad with few experienced hands, scarcity of numbers, and light in bulk. There was no shirking of work by the coach, and the men who tried to get by with less than their team-mates found themselves watching from the sidelines. However the handicaps were too much and with the exception of a surprise victory over New Mexico and a 0-0 tie with Colorado Aggies, Wyoming fell again before the attack of the Big Seven teams. This spring Okie resigned to take the job of Dean of Students. His successor is Bernard F. Oakes. Coach Oakes need not be introduced to any one in the Rocky Mountain region for his reputation spread far and wide while he was developing championship teams at Colorado University.

Always Wyoming says "wait till next season". We wonder if possibly in the near future the "next season" that we are waiting for will come. With a frosh team that has class and power and a few high caliber lettermen back, Coach Oakes may pull a few out of the fire next year. Spring practice this year showed much promise although lack of numbers again played havoc. If injuries can be kept to a minimum the new coach might find the fates a little kinder to him than they have been to his predecessors.

Every game had its thrills. The small crowds that sat in the wind-rocked stands saw the Cowboys fight, ever out-manned, never out-gamed, each opponent to a standstill until superior numbers began to tell. Feeley, thundering fullback, smashed and drove his way through every opponent. Dunigan, small but dangerous tailback, rifled passes and streaked his way for many precious yards. Thorpe, Moncini, Wilmont, and others won their right to wear a Wyoming sweater with their never dying spirit. The coach saw few victories, but never did he see a team that he was more proud of.

The seldom sung heroics of the men from the front line were ever great. Led by Bentley, Lokanc and Bradbard it was a tough line to crack for the better part of every game. But don't get us wrong it wasn't a three man line; no, it was composed of seven rough riding Cowboys, men who never asked for a rest and gave all that was in them. This is as much as anyone could ask of a team.

COACHES

Back in 1934 when Wyoming was rolling over all basketball foes, ardent sports writers created the phrase "Wyoming against the world." As the basketball season of 1940-41 slipped into its final games the sports writers began dusting off that old phrase.

Coach Ev. Shelton in his second year as head basketball coach at Wyoming University, expertly guided his Punchers to the top rung in the Big Seven ladder of supremacy. And the man at the helm is only beginning. The championship team was a group of hustling sophomores and Juniors with only two seniors on the squad and only one in the starting lineup.

The club was the most popular in the history of Wyoming sport annals. All attendance records fell by the wayside as every town and ranch in Wyoming begged for tickets. At every home game many disappointed fans were turned away. There is no question of what made this team so popular. It was not merely the fact that it won games; not merely because Coach Shelton had turned out the smoothest piece of basketball machinery most fans ever saw.

No the reason was pride; pride of Wyoming products. Yes, the home town boys made good. Every man of the squad of eleven was a Wyoming product. Each had been famous in his own right on a Wyoming high school five.

So thus it is rightly, "Wyoming against the world." Shelton and his eleven Wyomingites played against men from every part of the country and not once were they overshadowed, not even in defeat.

Next season the team will miss the two seniors who did their part in bringing to Wyoming a title. To take their places will be many men from this year's Frosh squad, who have the height, the speed, and the talent. However, they will have a hard job to fill even if they show the competitive spirit and team work that the Messers. Bentson and Kerback had.

The newcomers and veterans will be molded into a smooth working unit by their canny coach, and our prophecy is, "Wyoming will repeat her victory march and it will again be 'Wyoming against the world'."

Basketball

Wyoming's usual starting lineup had Big Jim Weir at Center, Bill Strannigan and Wily Willy Rothman at Guards, Chucks Bentson at one forward; and Curt Gouty or Kenny Sailors at the other forward post. This occasionally varied and Nick Krpan or Carl Kerback would be on the starting five. It didn't seem to matter who started however for Coach Shelton never hesitated to take any one out of a game if they were "off."

It was the team that won the victories; however it might truthly be said that they gave no more than the cheerleaders and the crowd. Whereas the team gave in fight and drive and sweat the others gave in all the vocal aid they could muster. It had been a long time since a Wyoming fan could enjoy the fruits of victory and they took advantage of it in a loud and excited manner.

Half time Wyoming 26, Colorado University 10. It was a moment to be enjoyed by both coach and player for Colorado was the defending champion who had unmercifully beaten us last year. By the door stand Okie Blanchard and down the wall is Dean O'Connor, both listening to the words of praise and criticism that Coach Shelton is giving.

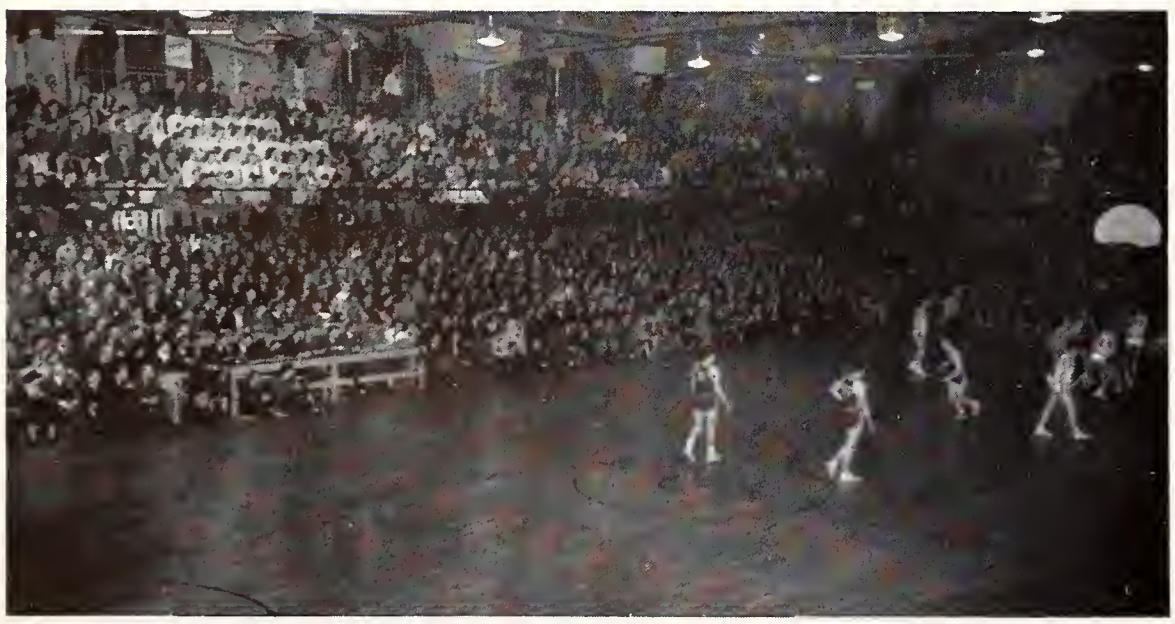
Wyoming vs. Colorado Aggies. However this is not a picture to illustrate a game but one to show how they packed them in when the Cowboys strutted their stuff.



When the firing was all over the championship safely tucked away the Punchers also won their share of individual honor. Bill Strannigan, the smoothest basketball artist to ever play on a Wyoming court, and Willy Rothman, appropriately called Wily Willy, won the two guard positions on the All-Conference selection. In addition Kenny Sailors made second team forward and was called one of the two outstanding sophomores to show during the season.

BASKE

Who is the Cowboy's most rabid fan? We can't say for sure but our candidate is George Walker. George has been six seasons at Wyoming as property custodian and never has he missed a home game. When the team plays away from home he drives the world crazy attempting to discover the results. George also has dreams and he applies them to the games attempting to prophesy the winner. Often he is right.

Suprised was George Walker when this shot was snapped. "Why didn't you tell me so I could smile," he asked disappointedly.

Next to Walker we pick Governor Smith as Wyoming's number one rooter. Made honorary captain the Governor traveled many a mile to see "his" team play. It is rumored that he left an important meeting in Denver to go to Fort Collins and see Wyoming whip the Aggies.

ANDERSON BARKER

PATTERSON WHISTON

Coach Dean O'Connor faces the same handicap each spring; the unpredictable Wyoming weather. It is seldon that the club can work outside more than a day or two at a time. They are confiined to the limited space of the armory for the majority of the practice sessions.

Consequently, the batting and fielding eyes are not what they should be. With this seri-retardment to cope with the coach and team must work extra hard every chance they get.

This year's club wil be built around five lettermen and Bill Strannigan, the boy who returned home. It is a club with dormant power that might explode at any time. If the wind and snow show any consideration the team might easily repeat last year's performance of finishing second in the Big Seven Conference.

The power laden bats of the Puncher's two all-conference selections, John Winterholler and Chucks Bentson will be missing. Filling their positions, however, will be two sophomores, Al Lokanc and Don Biggs, who weild "run-getting" bats.

Biggs .....second base
DeVries* .....right field

At the time this copy was being written Coach Hokuf, in his first season as track coach, had already proven himself successful. With two victories in three dual starts his men had already overshadowed most teams of the past.

The return of Victor Perkovitch plus four point getting sophomores, Jim Weir, Ken Sailors, Joe Mangus, and Hyrum Shumway, added greatly to his point making squad. In addition David Arrivee continually picked up points in the high hurdles.

Lack, Begonia, Parker, and T. Jones, all lettermen, added their share of points. E. Jones in the polevault and C. Jones in the low hurdles and sprints were other stars.

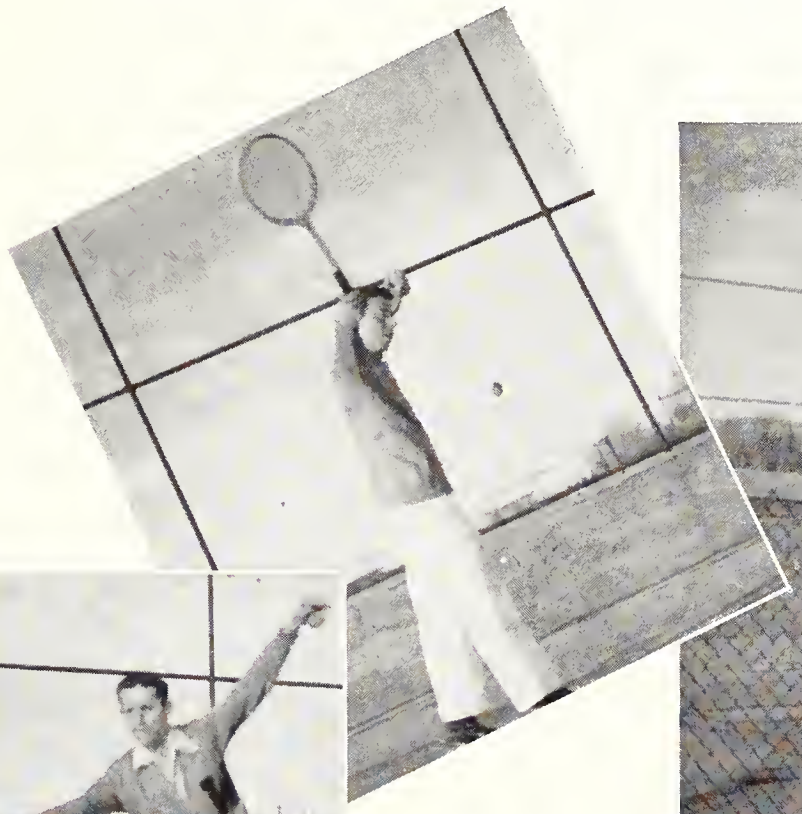
TENNIS AND GOLF

Coach Shelton will try to transplant his winning ways from the basketball court to the fairways. This is his first season with the golfers.

Three lettermen will be returning to the team. They are Clare, Halloran and Coady. Rothman, who is following Shelton from the court, did not participate last year because of illness. In Gawthrop, a sophomore, the team will have a man with much promise and ability.

Curt Goudy stepping into one.



Max Hassell. You tell us Max, did you just miss a backhand or are you waiting for one to come to your forehand?

Doctor Larson, "Doc" to all, comes from his history classes every afternoon to take the netmen under his guidance. "Doc" is not a paid coach. He teaches tennis on the wind swept Wyoming courts because he likes the game. To many it would be extra work but to him it is pleasure.

WRESTLING

Led by dynamic Merle Smith, who annexed his third successive Big Seven title, Wyoming took second in the conference wrestling meet. Smith was without doubt the headliner of the squad, although Baldwin and Hale won titles, for he was undefeated in three years of conference competition.

Coach Lantz, once a Cowboy great himself, need not take a back seat when the laurels are being given. He molded his sophomores into champs and his mediocre squad into a definite title threat.

Miyamoto did not win a title but says Lantz, "The most polished wrestler in the squad is Tomi Miyamoto."

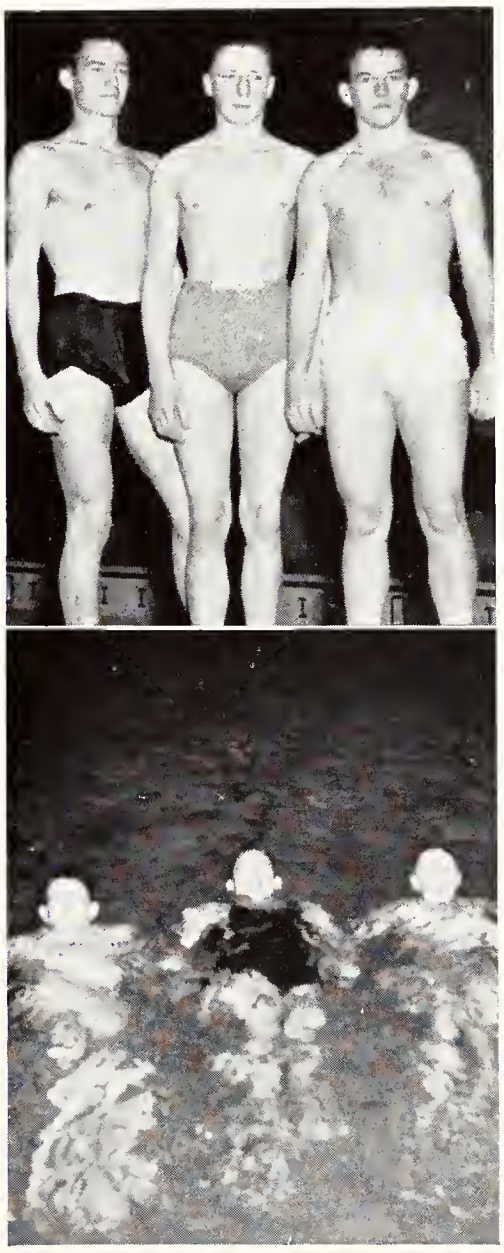
No it didn't end in a tie. They splashed and splashed and finally a winner emerged from the pool.

They posed so seriously that we had to run it. Harvey, Christensen, Halolran.



Lazily they floated here and there until the Coach roared "action!"

Wyoming's Cowboys do not seem able to adapt themselves to championship performances in the pool. Not since the days of Bill Hatfield has the Punchers developed a swimming threat in the conference.

With a new coach the team gave several excellent dual performances but lacked the power in the conference meet. The outstanding performers were undoubtedly Christensen and Harvey. Christensen is a letterman from last year while this is Harvey's first year of varsity competition.

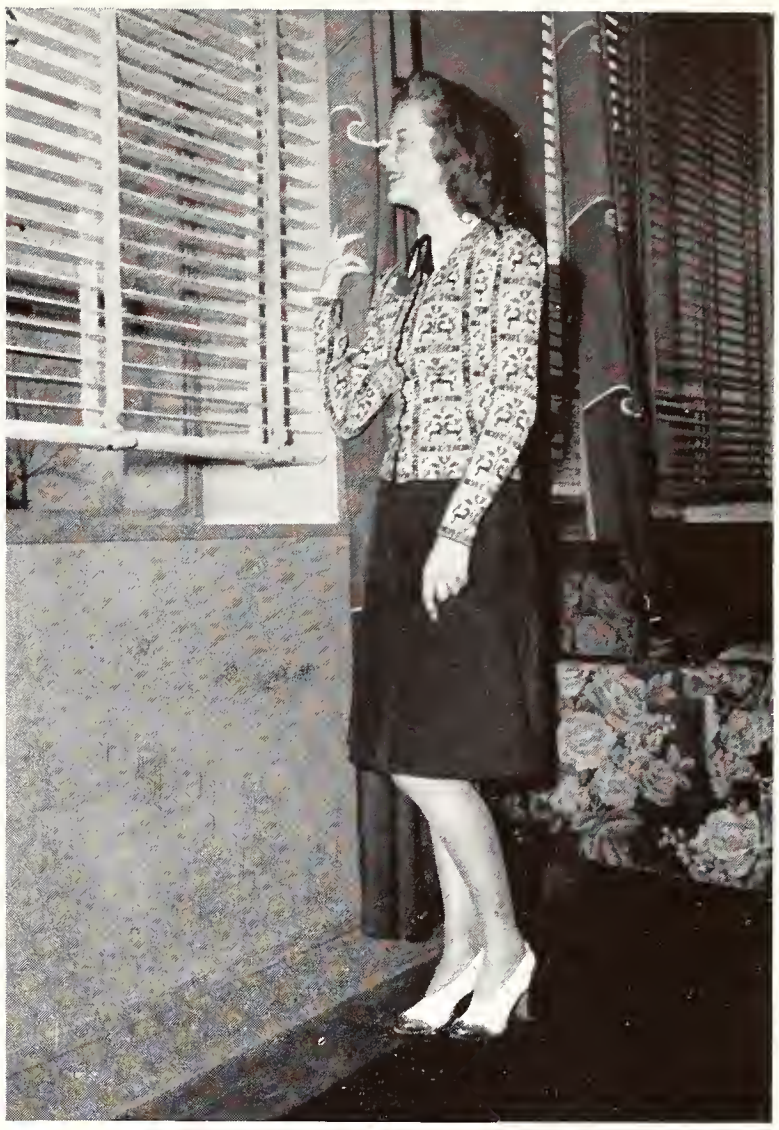
HELEN INKSTER

Vivacious is the only word to describe this active young lady who was chosen as Wyoming University's beauty queen by Earl Carroll, foremost authority on femininity. A freshman from Lander Helen is a member of Pi Beta Phi. Besides working on the Branding Iron staff Helen has been prominent in several college dramatic productions.

This charming young lady from Green River was awarded the distinction of second place in this year's beauty contest. Beverly is a freshman and a member of Pi Beta Phi. Informally we see her gazing from the window in the Union lounge. Wonder who she is waiting for?



BEVERLY

ELIZABETH COOKE

Well liked by everyone is "Bubbles" who tied for third place in the annual beauty contest. Senior from Casper, she won first in the contest her sophomore year. She is on the yearbook staff and a member of Delta Delta Delta. Incidentally she was quite put out when we caught her at work on the yearbook with her hair done up in one of those infernal handkerchiefs.

TWILA SMITH

This sophisticated young lady repeated her performance of last year by once again winning third place in the beauty contest, but this year she shared honors with "Bubbles" Cooke. A member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, Twila is a junior and claims Laramie as her home. One can't miss her as she tours the campus in that striking de-luxe club coupe.

ELINOR HITCHCOCK

SALLY ROUSE

This dark-haired talented lass was chosen by the entire cadet corps as queen of the Military Ball. Sally was winner of last year's beauty contest. She is very active in dramatics and radio and is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. We see her also with Cadet Colonel Bill Mann as they began the grand march beneath arched sabers of the cadet officers at the dance.

JOSEPHINE RADICH

The honor of reigning queen of the campus for a week-end was bestowed upon this young freshman last Homecoming. The election is sponsored by the Potter law club and the entire student body votes. In the company of protecting lawyers we see her as she rode in the Homecoming parade.

BILLIE KENNEDY

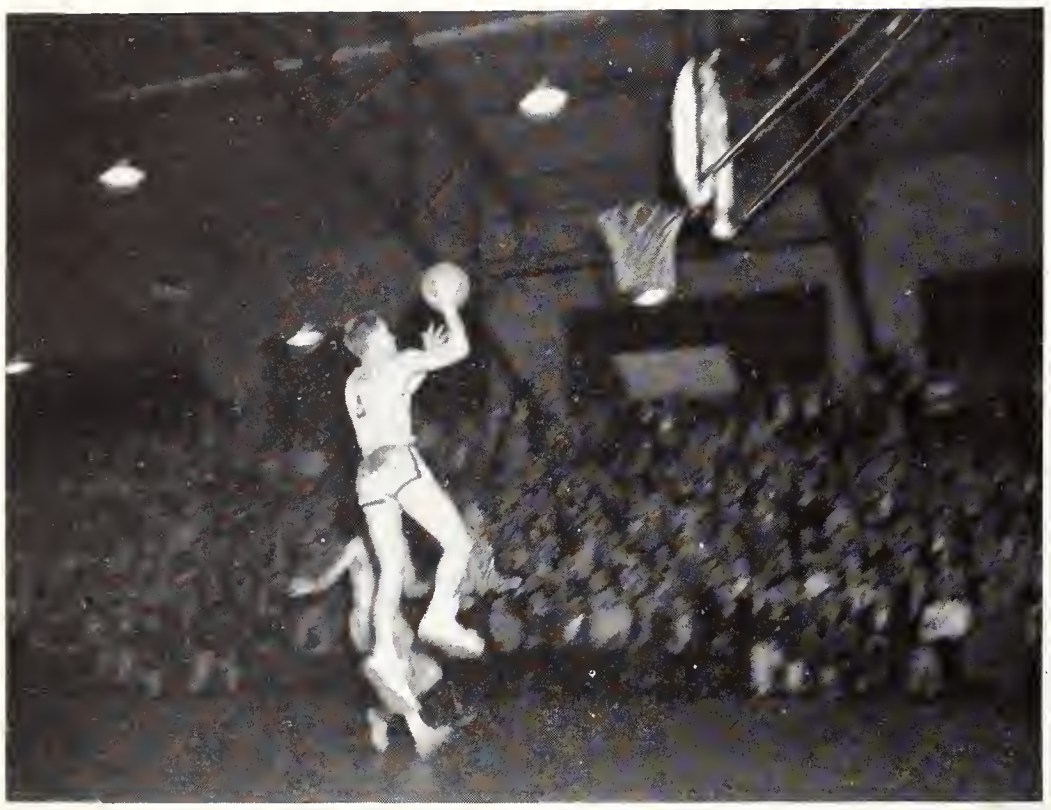
POPULARITY

KENNETH SAILORS



Voted by the entire student body as "most popular man on the campus" Kenny is a sophomore and hails from Laramie. In his first year of varsity sports Kenny has proved himself as a valuable man in both basketball and track. His most familiar garb is the white waiter's jacket worn by the fountain men in the Union, where his quick smile and gift of gab has won him a host of admirers. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta.

WINNERS

Amiable "Charwotte Spurwock", senior from Douglas captured the hearts of the students who voted her "most popular girl" for the year 1941-42. Charlotte was second place beauty winner last year and is a member of Pi Beta Phi. Our snapshot caught her making a sale at her familiar post at tbe Union counter. Surprised wasn't she?

Homecoming—Old grads are welcome and the campus attains the fall splendor and array only suitable for such an occasion. Sorority and fraternity houses blossom with their decorations and merry-making is the keynote for the week end celebration. Touching off the fireworks is the homecoming sing, Friday evening prior to the big pigskin battle the next afternoon. At the sing the Homecoming Queen is presented to the student body after which she leads them in the pep-rally for the team. Next morning floats, bands, and parading students combine to add further in the fun with the Homecoming parade. In the afternoon is the big game followed that evening by the Homecoming dance in the gymnasium. The campus apologizes to the alums for the rough weather last year and promises nothing but the best for the coming season.

DANCES

The cadet corps in full regalia at the annual Military Ball. Flags and bunting decorate the gymnasium and as we peek in on the event the grand march is just getting under way.

From the first all-University mixer to the last spring formal the University of Wyoming has perhaps as many dances as any similar institution in the land. The Engineers Ball inaugurates the fall quarter formal season and at this time the tuxedo and long dress come out of the closet for the winter. Then spotted intermittently between the various "dress-up" occasions are dances such as Sadie Hawkins, Powder River Ball, and the Commerce Carnival where everyone lets down his hair and enjoys a rollicking good time. Soon the arrival of spring and with the AWS formal dance the warm weather and moonlight affairs are formally launched. Thus the cycle of dances continues from one year to the next and the very strange thing about it all is that no one ever gets tired of them. Everyone looks forward to the next week-end and the dance.

This might be any one of a dozen all-University dances at the gymnasium where with plenty of room for fancy "rug-cutting" the student body turns out en-masse.

At top we witness the presentation of the honorary cadet colonel, the two honorary cadet majors and band sponsor, the highlight of the Military Ball. Each girl receives an engraved cup signifying the honor bestowed upon her. Below we see Bobbie Dunbar's "Collegians" all decked out for one of the more "informal" dances of the year. The Collegians have provided some fine music for many of the "get-to-gethers" on the campus and they are recognized as one of the finest dance bands on the campus.

DANCES

Freddie Hart and Betty Jane Chambers truly entered into the spirit of "dogpatch" and the story is out that they didn't even recognize each other when the time came for them to go to the dance. After one look at that picture I can see where they might be a bit confused as to their proper identity.

CAMPUS

As Knight hall, new girls' dormitory, opens we find two young ladies already trying out the desks for studying.

Tommy Francis seems to have acquired a sweet armful. How does he rate the two of them?

Could these two be crying over spilled milk. Your guess is as good as ours.

"All work and no play . . . ," but then you know the saying as well as we do. So here we have students of Wyoming university as they have fun and relax a bit from the books.

ACTIVITIES

And so we go through college . . . we have our bull-sessions, we take a quick nap right after dinner, we cook up midnight snacks before bedtime, we do many things that can't be found in the University bulletins or catalogues. But look back into the history of colleges and you will find that students did the very same things years ago. It is a part of college life . . . appreciate it, every minute of it, for it doesn't last forever.

Place—Men's dormitory. Time—most any evening. "I've worked so hard today I think I'll just relax a minute before I begin my studying tonight." And so he did!

CAMPUS SNAPSHOTS

The WYOMING UNION

"YOUR CAMPUS LIVING ROOM"

Whether it's homecoming, a brief visit, or just stopping in to say "Hello," the Wyoming Union welcomes you whenever on the campus. Dedicated to informal education and better living, the Union is the center of social life. The $300,000 building is managed by a student faculty committee, and serves a traffic of 500,000 persons annually. The place for dances, banquets, games, meetings and congenial relaxation is truly the living room of the campus.

Soup and fish, to wear as well as to eat, are featured at the many formal dinner-dances given throughout the year in the swank Union ballroom.

Students appear glum as they listen to a basketball game broadcast from Salt Lake City in the Main Lounge of the Union. The Cowboys finally won out.

When the University played host to the state legislature Governor Nels Smith dropped into the Blue Room for a snack.

Faculty and honored guests converse at the Phi Beta Kappa installation dinner held in the banquet hall of the Union.

There is not a square inch of space available in the popular fountain room after a game. The fountain room has aplty been termed the "crossroads of the campus."
